HANSEL AND GRETEL

Once upon a time there were two children, a brother and a sister, whose names were Hansel and Gretel. They lived with their father and with their stepmother. Their father worked as a woodcutter. Times were hard and the family had a tough life.

One night the children were woken up by a conversation in the next room.

“They eat too much. If they keep on like this, we’ll all die of starvation. We must get rid of them. Let’s do it tomorrow,” they heard their stepmother say.

“I don’t want to abandon my children,” said the father. He didn’t think the plan was a good idea. But the wife was very persistent and kept on talking and talking until he was convinced and willing to do what she said.

“Hansel, tomorrow we are going to die,” whimpered Gretel, “what shall we do?” Hansel reassured his sister that they would survive. “Get a good night’s sleep!” he soothed, and as soon as his sister fell asleep, he went outside and filled his pockets with as many white pebbles as he could. Then he went to bed.

The next morning the family woke up early, before sunrise. “Today we are going to cut some wood for the winter. It’s going to be a long day,” said their stepmother. “Take these pieces of bread and don’t eat them before noon, because then you will get hungry too early.” Hansel gave his bread to Gretel to hold, because his pockets were full of pebbles.

They went deep into the forest. On the way Hansel stopped every few steps and dropped a pebble behind him without telling anyone. After a while, they stopped. The stepmother told the children to sit there and wait quietly for them to come back. Their father said nothing.

Hansel and Gretel waited the whole day. They couldn’t believe that their father would actually leave them. But as the sun set, they knew that everything they heard the night before was true.

“Don’t worry Gretel,” said Hansel, “I dropped a trail of pebbles all the way here. Let’s eat our bread and have a sleep. We will leave tomorrow morning and be home by noon. Trust me.”

They did just as Hansel had said. The next morning they followed the trail Hansel had made and they made their way home. Their father was very happy to see them, that he couldn’t say a thing and just hugged them for as long as he could.

When evening came, the children heard their stepmother’s voice, “We will leave them further into the forest next time, so they won’t be able to find their way back.”

“What are you talking about?! We are not going to leave them alone in the woods again!” But the woman persisted, “Do you want to die of starvation?”

The man didn't reply. Hansel went to try and gather pebbles again, but this time the door was locked.

The next morning their stepmother gave them even smaller pieces of bread for lunch. On their way into the forest, Hansel dropped crumbs behind him, so that they would be able to find their way back home just like before. They walked for hours and hours. Eventually their stepmother said, "This looks like a good place. You can have a nap here while your father and I cut wood."

At lunch Gretel shared her piece of bread with Hansel and then they fell asleep. It was already evening when they woke up and it was too dark to find the crumbs, but Hansel told Gretel to keep calm and that they would go home the next morning.

When they woke up, they saw that wild animals had eaten the crumbs during the night. This time it was Hansel who was upset. "We will never find our way home now," he cried. But this time it was Gretel's turn to be brave. "Let's walk. I'm sure we'll be able to find our house," she said.

They walked the entire day. They were already very hungry and tired when they saw a white bird singing on a branch. It flew off and the children decided to follow him. It led them to a house. When they came closer, they saw that the house was built entirely from chocolate, with a roof made of cake, and windows made of clear sugar. The children started eating the house - Hansel took a piece of the roof, while Gretel tore down a part of the wall.

Suddenly the door opened and an old lady came out of the house. "Who's eating my roof and walls?!" she yelled, but when she saw the kids, she spoke again, this time in a much softer voice. "Please, come in. I can see you're hungry. I'll make you a delicious breakfast right now!"

They went in. The old woman made them pancakes with maple syrup and gave them milk to drink. Just as the brother and sister thought that they were in heaven, the old woman grabbed Hansel by the hand, her eyes glittered red and she laughed a creepy laugh. "Stupid children! Didn't you understand that I made this house to lure you in? I will now fatten you up, boy, so that I can eat you." She dragged Hansel into a small dark room and locked him up. Only then did Hansel and Gretel understand that she was not a nice old lady at all, but a witch! Her eyes were red and she was older than any human alive. She had terrible eyesight, but a very good sense of smell. No matter how much the children cried, the witch had no mercy on them.

"Come on, girl, start cooking something delicious for your brother. By the end of the month he should have got fat enough to be cooked."

Gretel had no other option, so she started cooking for her brother. A week passed like that - Hansel ate delicious food, while Gretel was always hungry. Every morning the old woman went to Hansel's room and shouted, "Show me your finger, boy, let me see if you have gained any weight." But Hansel would stick out a little bone and because the witch couldn't see very well, she thought it was his finger. She was furious that he was staying so thin.

When four weeks had passed the witch lost her patience and shouted at Gretel, "Hey, you! This is the biggest pot in the kitchen; fill it with water to the top! I don't care how thin your brother is - I am going to cook him today!"

Gretel prayed for a miracle to happen, but when she finished filling up the kettle, the witch helped her put it in the big oven. Then the old woman started the fire. A little while later the witch pushed poor Gretel towards the oven and said, "Get in and see if the water is boiling yet!" But Gretel thought that the witch wanted to push her into the pot and cook her too, so she cleverly answered, "How can I get inside the oven? Please, show me so that I can check the water."

"What's wrong with you?" the witch yelled, "It's so easy! Look, you just need to step here and ... aaaaaaaaaahhh!!!"

Gretel shoved the old woman into the oven. Then she quickly closed the oven door. The vicious witch burned to a crisp. Gretel rushed to Hansel's room, unlocked the door and gave him a big hug.

"Hansel, my dear brother, the witch is dead, let's get out of this wicked house and find our way home!"

How happy they were! Before they left the house, they went into the witch's bedroom where they knew she kept her treasure. There were wooden chests all over the room and the children filled their pockets with as many gems as they could. "These are better than pebbles," said Hansel when he was done filling his pockets. Then they left the house.

The brother and sister walked for a few hours before they managed to leave the witch's wood. The sun was setting when they finally got to a bridge they knew well, which was close to their house.

"Father!" screamed Gretel when she saw him at the porch, looking more miserable than ever, because his wife had died.

"My dearest children! You are alive!" their father exclaimed joyfully and the three of them hugged. Gretel shook out her apron and the precious stone started falling onto the ground. Hansel joined in and took out all the pearls and diamonds which he had stuffed into his pockets. Finally they could have a carefree life and live happily ever after together!

When evening came, the children heard their stepmother's words again. She insisted to leave the kids further into the forest next time. Their father refused, but he could not resist the stepmother anymore again. Hansel wanted to collect pebbles again, but the door was locked this time. In the morning, they woke up early.

She grabbed Hansel's hand and locked him in a room. She wanted to eat him after he got fatter. She ordered Gretel to cook him delicious food. Gretel cooked and Hansel ate. The witch had a poor eyesight, so when she came to check Hansel's finger, he always stuck out a little bone and the witch thought he was too thin to eat.

Gretel was scared and she thought they would die, but Hansel comforted her. He had a plan. He went outside and filled his pockets with pebbles. When they woke next morning, their stepmother gave them pieces of bread and they set off for the woods. On the way Hansel dropped a pebble every few steps.

When they woke up, they realised that wild animals had eaten the crumbs. They decided to walk and find their way to home. They were very hungry and tired, when they saw a house made of chocolate, cake and sugar. They started eating pieces of the house. An old lady came out and invited them in. She was actually a witch.

They went deep into the forest and stopped. Their stepmother told them to sit and wait for them to come back. The children waited the whole day, but nobody came. It was evening. They ate their bread and slept in the forest. Next morning, they followed the pebbles that Hansel had dropped and reached home. Their father was so happy.

Their stepmother gave them even smaller pieces of bread this time. On the way Hansel dropped crumbs behind him. They walked for a long time and stopped. Their stepmother told them to wait for them again. They shared a piece of bread and fell asleep. When they woke up, it was dark. They decided to go back in the morning.

One day she lost her patience and decided to cook him. As she was preparing the oven, Gretel shoved her into it and rescued her brother. They took the witch's gems from her chest and went back home. Their stepmother had died and their father was very happy when he saw his children alive. They lived a wealthy life.

Once upon a time there were two children, Hansel and Gretel, who lived with their father and stepmother. Their father was a woodcutter. They were so poor. One night they heard their stepmother insisting that they should get rid of the children or they will die of starvation. The father didn't want to do this, but could not resist anymore.
